Reinold Cornelius is a Program Director at the Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board, in the Division of Academic Affairs and Research.

He has worked at the Coordinating Board since 2001 in the administration of the Norman Hackerman Advanced Research Program, the Technology Workforce Development grant program, and the Engineering Recruitment Program. These programs are efforts by the State, mainly through peer-reviewed competitions, to foster research in Texas and to increase the numbers of engineering and computer science graduates. He also reviews academic degree programs in science and engineering disciplines.

Reinold Cornelius has graduate degrees in the geosciences from both The University of Texas at Austin and Penn State University, and an undergraduate degree from the German university at Karlsruhe. Previous employment included the Bureau of Economic Geology in Austin, Texas; the Global Basin Research Network, a consortium based at Cornell University; and Texaco.
